Clinical Reasoning in the Assessment and Intervention Planning of Attention-Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorder

Emma A. Climie; Janet W. T. Mah; Cheryl Y. Chase

Canadian Journal of School Psychology (July, 2016)
doi: 10.1177/0829573516658370

Abstract

The purpose of this article is to provide the reader with insight into the clinical reasoning involved in the assessment and intervention planning for a child with Attention-Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorder. The reader will be guided through the authors’ conceptualization of this case, and suggestions for intervention in the classroom will be discussed.